REMARKS / ARGUMENTS

Further to the Remarks contained in the Amendment filed 4 May 2009, claims 2,3,5,6 18,20, and 22 have been rejected based on limitation "consisting essentially of." Applicant has amended the claim to go back to the original language of "comprising" and, as such, this rejection is considered obviated.

In addition, claims 1, 13, 15 17, 19 and 21 have been rejected as unpatentable over Cipla while claims 2, 3, 5, 18, 20 and 22 have been rejected as unpatentable over Cipla in view of Gillis et al. Finally, Claim 6 has been rejected as unpatentable over Cipla in view of U.S. Patent 5,660,860 while Claim 16 was rejected as unpatentable over Cipla in view of U.S. Patent 5,660,860.

As stated in Applicant's previous Amendment, Cipla is not prior art to the subject invention. This shown by exhibits A and B submitted herewith. Exhibit A shows the page which the Examiner has cited as prior art while Exhibit B shows a search result for this page in the internet archive showing that the page did not exist until 2004, more specifically November 27 2004. Since the web page cited by the Examiner did not prior to the filing date of January 22, 2004, it cannot be prior art to the subject invention. Accordingly, with the Cipla reference removed as prior art, none of the rejections can stand and, accordingly, Applicant believes all to be allowable.

Applicant also has amended the claims so that they now recited that the composition comprises a single tablet of a uniform mixture. With the removal of Cipla and this amendment, Applicant has added reason to believe the claims to be allowable.

Applicant hereby requests reconsideration and reexamination thereof.
